Functions Honoring Recent Brides and Hill Crest Club Bridge and 42 Party Are of Major Interest

Parties and showers honoring recent brides and bridge parties held the major interest in society during the week as the mercury slipped up to a high peak. Mrs. Herman Garman, who before her recent marriage was Miss Eva Carrow, was given a surprise party and shower Monday evening by her sister, Mrs. A. G. Duncan, at her home on Bacon Street. Another bride, Mrs. Charles Kadetz, nee Miss Amanda Karcher, whose marriage took place at the Lutheran parsonage Wednesday evening, was honored at a surprise party and shower Tuesday afternoon, given by Miss Louise Lowke at her home in South Vernon.

Bickley at the Methodist parsonage on Peace Street. A short program of music and readings was given during the afternoon and punch was served. A meeting of the Girl Scouts was held at Allingham Park Monday evening and the second class requirements were studied.

REMOVAL OF TELEPHONE OFFICE IS ANNOUNCED

"By locating our business office downstairs we hope our subscribers will find it more accessible," Mr. Williams said. "We believe that the new location will help us give more efficient service. It is our desire that the new centrally located office will mean an added convenience to the people we serve."

The new telephone office will occupy the premises formerly used by the City Water Department. This move not only means a convenience to the telephone subscribers but locates the company within a half block of other public utilities in Vernon, making this a concentrated area.

Florida Desperado Condemned To Die Bases Appeal To President Hoover for Life on Conversion

Miami, Fla. (P)—Religious conversion holds out a hope for life to a condemned Floridian.

James Horace Alderman, 50-year-old desperado sentenced to die August 17 for killing two coast guardsmen and a secret service man, has appealed to President Hoover for clemency on the ground that he has become converted to the Christian faith and has in turn converted scores of other criminals.

Alderman apparently lost a year's legal battle to escape hanging when the United States Supreme Court in June refused to take a hand in his case.

While attorneys were fighting for his life in three courts, Alderman declares that he led regular prayer meetings in the Jacksonville jail and gave spiritual relief to his cell mates. Alderman's killing of three Government operatives climaxed a long career of crime that had for its background both Florida coasts as well as the Everglades.

Convicted of rum-running and the robbery of a Seminole Indian chieftain, Alderman served prison terms for both offenses before he was found guilty of murder. At the time of his arrest on the latter charge he was under bond, accused of smuggling aliens into the United States from Cuba.

In August 1927, Alderman, his confessed partner in liquor traffic, Robert E. Weech, and a rum laden boat were seized off Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and the men there taken aboard a coast guard cutter.

On the patrol boat Alderman led an attack on his captors and gained possession of the Government craft. Coast guardsmen said that he was going to make them "walk the plank" in pirate style when a secret service man, Robert E. Webster, led a counter offensive to retake the cutter. Webster and two coast guardsmen were killed in the ensuing gun battle.

Alderman pleaded self defense, but was found guilty of murder by a jury in Federal court here in January, 1928. Weech entered a plea of guilty to lesser charges and received a light sentence.

Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter, who pronounced the death sentence on Alderman, has issued an order barring all newspaper men from the scene of the execution.

He also warned official attendants that any one witnessing the hanging and divulging details of the execution would be held in contempt of court.

Your HOME Should Come FIRST

IS YOUR HOME KEEPING PACE WITH THE TREND OF THE TIMES?

THE SECRET OF A CHARMING HOME DOES NOT INVOLVE EXCESSIVE EXPENDITURE

Fashion ordains that we drive better motor cars—wear better clothes—own better radios—patronize better shows—but some of us are prone to forget our homes.

That is a sad mistake, for after all, we can only find the source of true happiness (that elusive "something" sought by all) within the home. Is your home what it should be? Is it inspiring—is it fascinating—does its charms outweigh the lure of outside interests? If not, let's give some serious consideration to planning intelligent, economical improvement.

Draw on our fund of knowledge of home furnishings and home decoration. Examine the extensive assemblage of authoritative new fashions in furniture and rugs ready here now. We aim to serve you better. Call upon us—any time. (Telephone 75).

INTOLERABLE PRISONS

The number of prison revolts that are occurring over the nation, with the treatment of convicts being given as the reason, should direct the attention of Texans to prison conditions in this state, never such that would excite pride. The Prison Centralization Commission, appointed to make a survey of the prison system relative to reorganization, has already reported that prison conditions are not what they should be, and that the system is overcrowded.

It has said that there is no appearance of willful brutality in the conduct of the prison farms, but there is every evidence of the baneful effect of poor housing, of overcrowding and of the lack of necessities of sanitation.

On first consideration this may seem a rather mild indictment, but a study must convince one that it is surprisingly inclusive, and may be interpreted as meaning that conditions on the whole are deplorable. It indicates that Texans ostensibly sent to prison for correction and reformation are placed in conditions that are repugnant and pernicious. Unsanitary and crowded penitentiaries are not likely to be conducive to improvement in character.

When Texas takes away the liberty of an individual, it assumes an obligation to look after his interests, including his health and, in a measure, environment that may influence his life. It has no right to deprive him of his liberty and force him in to living conditions that may be responsible for infecting him with diseases that will make the remainder of his life miserable, or crowding him in with hardened criminals that may rob him of whatever sense of justice and right that he may possess. To do this society is committing a crime as great as the one the individual commits against it.

Texas is able to provide for those whom it finds necessary to deprive of their liberty. There is no excuse for a continuation of a policy that robs imprisonment of its slightest vestige of reformation. These revolts call attention to conditions that should not be tolerated.

ARMS LIMITATION MUST BE REDUCTION

Senator Borah's attitude toward arms limitations negotiations now in progress between the United States and Great Britain will find many supporters among the masses. Limitation that will call for material reduction has a strong appeal to the American citizen who not only is tired of bearing the burden of maintaining a powerful navy, but recognizes that navy as an incentive to war.

As yet hardly a hint of the formula for the so-called limitation has been passed on to the public, but every American must hope that the agreement will call for a reduction in the navies of both the United States and Great Britain. Otherwise an agreement of parity will mean very little. Arms limitation becomes a farce if the limits are placed so high that the nations will find it necessary to add to their present equipment in order to possess the fighting strength permissible.

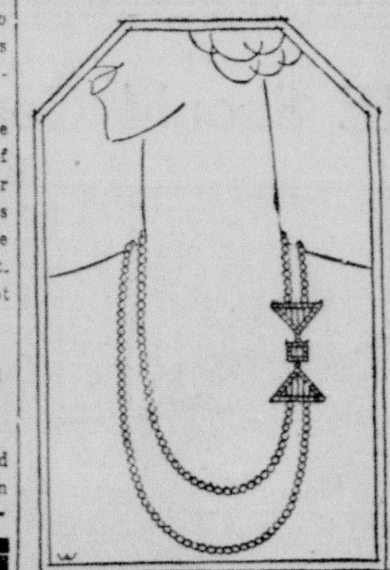

Great Britain doubtless will be reluctant to scrap her costly warships, but the United States should not hesitate to insist upon a formula that will mean a reduction of the present naval strength, not merely a curtailment of competition in the future. Fortunately for America's position in the present negotiations, the United States actually scrapped several costly battleships under the terms of the Washington conference, and therefore has every right to insist upon a program that will mean destruction of some of the fighting equipment of the two nations this time. Since this country did not hesitate to sink some of her best battleships when her naval strength gave her an enviable position among the powers of the world, it will be difficult for England to criticize a demand for a plan that will mean reduction.

Surely this is a propitious time for taking steps to reduce the armed strength of nations. Since the major powers have gone on record as favoring the abolition of war as an instrument of national policy, it is not unreasonable to take the position that at least a part of the armaments can be safely scrapped. This is merely a means by which the nations may evince their good faith in adhering to the Kellogg-Briand treaty.

At all events, it would be useless for the United States and Great Britain to waste time in negotiations that would only limit armaments, but would mean no reduction in the present strength.

CHRISTIANS GO INTO TIE FOR LEAD WITH 6 TO 5 WIN

BAPTISTS ARE DEFEATED BY CLOSE SCORE IN APPROPRIATE CLIMAX TO LEAGUE SEASON

The league standing:
TEAM— G. W. L. Pct.
Presbyterians . . . 9 6 3 .667
Christians . . . 9 6 3 .667
Baptists . . . 9 4 5 .444
Methodists . . . 9 2 7 .222

The Christian team of the Vernon Sunday School league defeated the Baptists 6 to 5 in the last scheduled game of the season and went into a tie with the Presbyterians for first place in the league standing for the second half of the season.

As a result of the game yesterday, the Christians and Presbyterians will play a three-game semi-final playoff series next week to determine the winner of the second half and the right to meet the Baptists, winners of the first half, in a final playoff series during the week beginning Monday, August 12. The tie between the Christians and Presbyterians will be played off Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of next week, it was learned this morning.

The game yesterday was an exciting and as close as the score indicates, and was a fitting climax to the Sunday School league season.

Finis Ross went the route for the Christians yesterday, pitching a seven-inning, no-walk game, striking out four Baptist batters. Edwards started for the Baptists and struck out two Christian batters to close the third inning, and opened the fourth by walking two heavy hitters. Whereupon he went to the bench and Simmons was sent to the box to allow three hits and three runs, and lose the game.

Bridges, S. Dobb, and F. Dobb went out in order to start the game, the latter singling and Rainwater grounding to Sands who chose F. Dobb.

Three Christian runs went across in the first inning. Burgess was safe on S. Dobb's fumble and Sands walked. Shoemaker bounced to Rainwater who tagged Burgess at first, leaving Shoemaker safe at third. Currin singled over short to score Sands, and stole second. Wilkins popped out to Wolfe, and Kootz singled over second, scoring Shoemaker and Currin. Stiffler went out, Steve Dobb to Fred.

The Baptists hit four times in the second for four runs. Wolfe was safe on Burgess' fumble, and stole second. Chaffin doubled to center, scoring Wolfe, and King singled to the infield. Teel's single to the infield scored Chaffin and Edwards was safe to Fred.

The game was a close one, with the Christians leading 6 to 5 in the ninth inning. The Christians won in the fourth after the Baptists had been retired in order. Wilkins and Kootz went in order. Wilkins and Kootz went in order. Wilkins and Kootz went in order.

Dundee Fouls Fields—Loses Welterweight Title

Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, had just about 30 seconds more of his championship left to him when this picture was snapped. Dundee is shown on the floor of the ring at Detroit, knocked down by Jackie Fields. Just after this picture was taken the beaten champion staggered to his feet and committed the foul that put his championship diadem on Fields' head. Gov. Fred Green of Michigan was a ringside spectator of the fight; his head can be seen on the far side of the ring, between the referee's legs.

Coach Expects To Issue Football Uniform Here About Last of This Month, Ten Lettermen To Return

From present indications Vernon High School's success in the 1929 football race will depend largely on the strength of the returning veterans and lettermen, according to a belief expressed by W. C. Weir, head coach of high school athletics, before he left this week for Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., where he will attend the summer coaching school. Mr. Weir will attend courses in football, basketball and track, but will be particularly interested in the former.

Ten lettermen will return to the high school gridiron this fall, and will start training early in September. Mr. Weir will return here in time to issue uniforms about the last of August, he said. He expects that 50 or 60 men will report at the first of the season for first team competition. New uniforms and equipment will be furnished all who report at this time, he said.

The ten lettermen, who will serve as a nucleus about which the 1929 football machine will be constituted, are Roy Rodman, Bill Price, Vernon Manis, Rayford Thomas, Sam Parker, Beck Lawrence, John Gelhausen, Emmett Crawford, Herbert Baird, and Clifford Bowden. Other squadmen will return to the grid for another season and it is with a degree of optimism that coaches and football followers look forward to the coming season. The team will be light, but fairly fast, according to indications. Only six of the gridsters who have signified their intentions of reporting this fall weigh over 160 pounds. These are Rodman, Crawford, Manis, Caldwell, Paschall, and Thompson. The latter trio did not letter last year but have proven their worth. Other aspirants for berths on the 1929 squad who are expected to come through next season are Earle, Christian, Ray Parker, and Lundy Shelton.

None of the lettermen have lettered more than once previously, and each one of them will play their last high school football this fall. Those who will be candidates for the backfield this fall are Baird, Crawford, Gelhausen, Lawrence, Christian, King, and Lutz. Linemen are Rodman, Bowden, Price, Manis, Sam Parker, Ray Parker, Caldwell, Newth, Shelton, Anderson, Armstrong, Cox, and Thomas. These men have played the positions in the preceding season and are expected to present the strongest bids for the berths this season.

A complete list of the candidates for positions on the team this fall has not been compiled at this time, but a partial list follows: Lacy, Watson, Williams, Smith, Baskerville, Bird, Thompson, Wood, Love, Judd, Marrs, Nixon, Emerick, Ridgeway, Withers, Armstrong, Corzine, Cecil, Caldwell, Dickey, Dicus, Powell, Knauth, Childers, Bryant, Richie, Roberts, Wilkins, Nankin, Castberry, J. Christian Robinson, Gallaway, Parr, Neas, Stewart, Sheppard, Seale, Pennington, and Anthony.

Coach Weir expressed the opinion that Texas' best football for the 1929 season will be played in West Texas, including districts one and two. The Vernon Lions will be hard pushed to muster forces sufficient to keep in the mix of the season's battle, for it is anticipated that many strong teams will be out for the district crown. Amarillo, Lubbock, and Wichita Falls will be Vernon's most threatening enemies, Mr. Weir predicted.

Wichita Falls High School will have twelve lettermen returning this fall, and Lubbock will probably report a return of eleven veterans. Amarillo always offers heavy competition and will be on the field in a fighting mood during the coming season. The 1929 schedule for the Vernon Lions, which was practically completed yesterday, calls for eleven games. Six of these will be conference tilts. The others will be practice games with Texas and Oklahoma teams. Only one date is open, and it is possible that a practice game may be arranged for that day. The conference season will open September 28 with a game with Quanah here, and will close with a Thanksgiving event featuring a visit by the Electric team.

Under the schedule arranged, Vernon plays only one conference game, that with Quanah, before November, then meets Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Plainview, Lubbock and Electra on successive weeks in November. This appears to be about the stiffest schedule the Lions have ever faced.

The schedule:
Sept. 20, Frederick, Okla., at Vernon.
Sept. 28, Quanah at Vernon.
Oct. 4, Grandfield, Okla., at Vernon.
Oct. 11, Pampa at Vernon. (Tentative).
Oct. 18, Gould Okla., at Vernon. (Tentative).
Oct. 26, Open.
Nov. 2, Wichita Falls at Wichita Falls.
Nov. 11, Amarillo at Vernon.
Nov. 16, Plainview at Plainview.
Nov. 23, Lubbock at Vernon.
Nov. 28, Electra at Electra.

MANDELL GIVES BOXING LESSON

TONY CANZONERI TURNED BACK EASILY BY CHAMPION

Chicago Stadium, Chicago, Aug. 3. —(P)—Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, successfully defended his title against Tony Canzoneri, in their 10-round battle in the Chicago stadium last night.

The champion, after losing the first two rounds, moved ahead in the third, and gave his youthful challenger a masterful boxing lesson until the finish. Mandell was credited with winning seven of the 10 rounds with the first two going to Canzoneri and the eighth even.

The verdict of the two judges and the referee, Dave Barry, was not unanimous, however. The two judges voted for Mandell, with Dave Barry, the referee, balloting in favor of Canzoneri.

The lightweight titleholder was a 7 to 1 favorite to retain his title with Canzoneri, the former featherweight champion having only a handful of supporters.

Mandell scaled exactly 135 pounds, the championship limit, when he weighed in at the offices of the Illinois athletic commission at 2 p. m.

The challenger, following him to the scales tipped the beam at 132 1-2 pounds, a pound and a half heavier than the mark he had set for himself during the training period. Mandell seemed as lean as a race horse and slightly drawn when he stepped on the scales.

The battle was fought to the accompaniment of booming thunder. As the big West Side arena began to fill, the rain which had been falling all day, best a steady tattoo on the roof. The deluge, however, did not dampen the enthusiasm of the spectators.

Indications were the crowd might not reach a capacity attendance due to the downpour. All the cheaper seats were occupied with only a patch here and there of empty seats in the $10.00 locations. Harmon, president of the Chicago Stadium corporation, estimated receipts would exceed $10,000, with more than 20,000 in attendance.

ANDY MESSENGER BEATEN IN TEN-INNING EXHIBITION

(By The Associated Press)
Jim Galloway, who fully intends to give Wichita Falls a pennant this year, might have been excused if he had sneaked out behind the clubhouse and tried to bite himself last night.

It was "Bad News Jim" who last spring decided Fred "Lefty" Stiely, although ambitious, would not be of much use to the Spudders in a pitching way. So Stiely was shipped down to Beaumont.

Yesterday Stiely came within one hit of pitching himself into the Texas League hall of fame. Facing the Dallas Steers, one of the hardest hitting clubs in the circuit, Fred calmly pitched himself a 5 to 0 shutout to give the Exporters the jump on the series. But for Randy Moore the Fork-hander's day would have been perfect. Moore punched a single after two were out in the sixth.

Meanwhile, lack of pitching prevented the Spudders adding to their two-game lead over the field. Andy Messenger, new and costly addition, was driven from the hill as Waco opened the series with a 5 to 4 victory in 13 innings.

The Shreveport Sports kept their record clear against the southern teams by taking the Buffs, 5 to 4, in their opener. For the second consecutive day Ernie Holman, Sport third sacker, belted a homer with two on.

Charlie Sullivan had the San Antonio Indians hee-haw after the first inning and the Fort Worth Cats greeted Pat Newman's crippled team with a 6 to 1 reverse. It was the ninth straight setback for the Tribe, which just had come out of one long losing streak before entering the present one.

These Flying Flappers

All Summer Long, Women Aviators
Will Be Vying to Set New
Altitude and Endurance Records,
A Race Begun by Two Girls

Crack Birdwoman Evelyn (Bobbie) Trout. . . . Another feminine flyer bettered her record of 17 hours 24 minutes in the air, but Bobbie immediately announced she'd "stay with it until the tanks are empty." . . . Right, a closeup of Flyer Trout.

Twotime endurance record holder Elinor Smith. She and Bobbie Trout started the air battle that is now raging. . . . Left, a recent camera portrait of Flying Flapper Smith.

THE battle of the birdwomen—which began as a duel between 17-year-old Elinor Smith of New York and 19-year-old Bobbie Trout of Los Angeles—has become an aerial free-for-all.

Miss Trout started it all when she stayed in the air for 12 hours and 11 minutes. And Miss Smith promptly clipped the wings of California's flying flapper by keeping her plane aloft for 13 hours and 16 minutes.

No placid loser of records, Flyer Trout hopped into her machine again and boosted the women's endurance record to 17 hours and 24 minutes, a notable performance that lured a third and able contestant into the race.

It was on March 16 that this newcomer—Louise McPhetredge Thaden, 23 years old and technically no flapper because she's married—roared down a runway at the Oakland, California, airport and came not to earth again for 22 hours 3 minutes and 12 seconds.

Some three months before this, Mrs. Thaden had audaciously flown away with another aviation record for women by pushing a plane 20,170 feet above terra firma, thus smashing the altitude record of 15,000 feet held by Lady Heath of England.

Flyers Smith and Trout forthwith announced that they were still very much in the market for feminine air records, and three other women entered the lists—Miss Jean La Rene, Miss Marvel Crosson and Mrs. Florence Lowe Barnes.

Miss La Rene, an advanced student at a Marshall, Mo., flying school and 21 years old, announced that she was after Mrs. Thaden's sustained flight crown. Miss Crosson, 25, and a skilled pilot, set her heart on Mrs. Thaden's altitude record, and Mrs. Barnes, the wife of the Reverend C. Rankin Barnes of Pasadena, coveted the endurance laurels.

But it remained for Elinor Smith to set a new mark for the flying flappers to shoot at. On April 23 she took off from Roosevelt Field and stayed up for 26 hours, 21 minutes and 32 seconds, breaking the McPhetredge record by 4 hours, 18 minutes and 20 seconds.

And so, at the moment you happen to be reading this, the flight records for women may be anyone's, for new rivals are entering the field as fast as they can get planes and gasoline, and the sky has no limits. In the bargain, records in flying never stay with any one individual or at any one mark for very long periods of time.

BOBBIE TROUT, who twice set up a new women's record for endurance flying and twice had her record broken, is a crack flyer who demonstrates airplanes for a concern making commercial machines.

Her home port is Inglewood, the Los Angeles suburb in which the factory employing her is located. Anyone looking for her there would either find her in the factory office or aloft. If the latter, you would have to gaze long and earnestly for a flashing glimpse of her golden monoplane, maneuvered with a skilled touch above the airport.

Once seen and signaled down, it returns to the field in a bird-like swoop to a perfect landing, and a quick stop. From out of the cockpit vaults a slim figure in boots and breeches, greets a waiting mechanic with a comradely slap on the back and helps him wheel the ship into the nearby hangar.

Miss Trout—whose real name is Evelyn—is of medium height, probably five feet five and a half inches and confesses to 107 pounds of athletic health. With her slightly freckled face and close-cropped bob she strikes one as just a boyish youngster full of ambitions and ideals which the world hasn't been able to rub off. Certainly she bears none of the earmarks of celebrity, and she talks freely about herself in direct, enthusiastic boyish fashion with no trace of self-consciousness.

And it is with this same energetic enthusiasm that she tells of her three great ambitions.

THE first, naturally enough, is to regain the world's endurance record. And she wants to set a mark that will endure.

Her second follows logically. Bobbie wants to become the world's premier feminine flyer.

But her third—try and tie it! America's youngest flying notable wants to make a lot of money, buy a piece of land out on California's beautiful desert, build a place of her own and then take in lots and lots of homeless kids.

"That one sounds odd, doesn't it?" she queried. "Well, a fellow has to do something worth while in the world besides fly around it. I like kids and I'd like to take care of a lot of them that haven't any homes."

Miss Trout's idea of adopting a large and ready-made family some day agrees perfectly with her openly expressed views on marriage which, briefly, aren't encouraging to any of her many admirers.

"I like men," she says, "but I don't want one of them for a permanent boss. Single life suits me just fine. I'm earning my own living, have my own car and my own ship and am interested in too many plans in life to be bothered with a husband. Imagine coming down out of the clouds to a dishwashing job at home!"

Louise McPhetredge Thaden. . . . Smashed two women's records by staying in the air 22 hours and four minutes, soaring more than 20,000 feet above earth, but a flock of young birdwomen took after her laurels. . . . Right, aviatrix Thaden in her working clothes.

BOBBIIE lives with her parents and one brother, and as she describes it, follows the routine of any other working girl. "Leading a very quiet life" is her version of it. "I go to work just like anyone's secretary might do, spend the day on the job and then come home. I don't attend many parties or dances because I'm not very keen about 'em, although I do go to some. Can't get out of all of them, you know."

The Trout family came from what Bobbie describes as a "wide spot in the road" called Greenup, Ill. She went to the Los Angeles schools and for two years was a co-ed at the University of Southern California.

"I've wanted to fly ever since I first saw the movies of war-time aviators fighting in the air," says Miss Trout in telling of her early ambitions. "Every time I'd see that kind of picture I'd get so excited that mother would almost have to hold me in my seat. I resolved then and there to become a flyer myself if I ever got the opportunity. Now I'd rather fly than eat, and my appetite is good."

It was some time, however, before Bobbie's dream came true, for her first venture on leaving college was as proprietor of an automobile service station. This irked her. Looking around for some new line of endeavor she was attracted to the work of Bertillon experts. She resolved to try it, but finally gave it up.

THE old Burdett airport in Los Angeles, now the field of the Aero Corporation of California, first gave Bobbie to the air. Several others had given her the air, so to speak, when she mentioned her flying ambitions, but Burdette Fuller, proprietor of the field and a well-known teacher, was convinced of a great future for women in aviation. He took her dreams seriously, encouraged her in her desire for training, and became her first instructor.

Soon she had made her first solo flight and had two world's records to her credit, even though they were rather promptly broken. When interviewed after Mrs. Thaden broke her second endurance record, Bobbie said, "Next time I'll have more power and more gas and will stay with it until the tanks are empty."

Miss Trout thinks that staying awake is the toughest part of endurance flying, and that many of the world's records for distance and endurance flying will, eventually, go to women.

"I think," she says, "that some day I'm going to be able to prove that myself."

ELINOR SMITH, New York's flying flapper who took away Bobbie

Trout's first endurance record by keeping aloft 13 hours and 16 minutes, and then broke the McPhetredge record by her 26-hour flight, doubling her own best time, has been flying since she was eight years old. She wasn't doing any solo flying at that tender age, but she did lay the foundation for the stunt that would make her famous. In taking the air as a profession, Miss Smith followed in the footsteps of her dad whose vocation is acting and whose avocation is flying a plane. Tom Smith, a "comedy single" playing the Keith time, was the first actor to take up flying. Having heard that actors sometimes had difficulty in getting back to the starting point, Mr. Smith precluded any possibility of tie walking by purchasing a plane.

Daughter Elinor frequently accompanied him to the flying field, and it wasn't long before she was sitting fearless as a young eagle beside Bert Acosta, the pilot who flew Byrd's plane across the Atlantic.

Sometimes, on these flights, Acosta would permit the little girl to hold the stick—just as the children of a bygone day were allowed to hold the end of the lines that spanned Dobbin's broad back—and she knew then that some day she would really drive a plane.

At the age of 12, under the tutelage of M. Gaubert, a French pilot, she could fly a ship perfectly, and stunt it in the air. She was not allowed to handle takeoffs or landings, nor was she permitted to do any solo flying; father Smith did not believe in children being too precocious—and besides, takeoffs and landings are dangerous unless one is perfectly schooled in handling a plane.

ELINOR'S faith in her schooling was perfect—all she had to do was to convince Dad; the convincing would have to be handled surreptitiously for she was still at the spanking age.

She saved her allowance, and when she had $60 of her own, she confided her young ambitions to a former mail pilot who was accepting students for $30 an hour, and swore him to secrecy.

Each morning before the sun was over the horizon, Elinor quietly arose, dressed, and taking the family Ford from the garage, was off to the flying field.

Before the family stirred, she had taken her lesson, was back home and in bed. At seven, she arose again, innocently joined the family at breakfast, and went off to school.

The morning she executed five perfect landings all in a row, she was so thrilled with the accomplishment she returned to her house, and with her cap and goggles pushed back on her head, she burst into her parents' bedroom and announced that she was a real flyer.

Father Smith was a doubting Thomas, until she met him at the flying field after school and took him up as her passenger.

She is still too young to be given her final pilot's license. She has two more years to go before she attains her majority, but in the interim, she expects to continue flying until she can qualify as an "expert expert!"

WHEN she voiced her desire to attempt an endurance test, she was told she was crazy, that it couldn't be done. Notwithstanding the opposition, she got her parents' consent, and choosing the coldest day in January, she took off in a cross wind in 15 seconds. The world knows what she accomplished.

Miss Smith's flying career has not been without its mishaps. "False alarms," she calls these, but the alarm she had two years ago when she misjudged the distance between the top of a tree and the running gear of her plane was anything but false.

In attempting to land, New York's flying flapper skimmed the tree's topmost branches, which brought her to earth in a "crackup" and injured her left leg so badly that she was forced to give up flying for a time. Also it prevented her graduation from school.

There are no romantic notions in Elinor Smith's blond head. She has all the feminine accomplishments, dances divinely, plays the piano beautifully, sings, rides horseback, plays polo, swims expertly and is at home on a tennis court. But when it comes to matrimony, she isn't interested.

"I have often wondered," she says, "just what I would do if I fell in love. I'd know exactly what to do if I fell in a plane, but falling in love is another matter. I believe I would think it over a long time, and if it came to a choice between the 'Prince Charming' and flying, I'd stick to flying!"

"If aviation will not interest women as a new profession, perhaps they will be interested to learn that as an avenue to matrimony it is unexcelled, for after I made my endurance solo, I was deluged with letters, and most of them proposals! Where did they come from? You would be surprised. Sixty per cent were from clergymen and college professors!"

That the girl flyers are creeping up on the records held by men is shown in the fact that Elinor's second record-breaking flight comes within nine hours of the 35 hour, 33 minute and 21 second record set by Martin Jensen.

BACK in the days of her girlhood in Bentonville, Ark., Louise McPhetredge wanted to fly. But she did not begin to realize her ambition until 1919 when she rode as a passenger in a plane. The pilot mistook her eagerness to get into the air as fright and she bawled him out roundly for his error.

After her graduation from the University of Arkansas in the class of 1926, she sold oil, studied the theory of aviation and took a lesson or two in the science of flying. And in April, 1927, she actually handled a plane in the air.

When she could not make perfect landings it angered her, as it did when the pilot thought she was frightened, so she mastered the trick and many another trick that the skilled pilot must know.

Three months later she lost her heart to Herbert V. Thaden, builder of Thaden airplanes, and married him. And she celebrated the event by winning her commercial pilot's license with honor.

Her next step was to go after records, and the decisive manner in which she smashed both the altitude record and the endurance record is a bright page in the story of feminine flyers.

Now Mrs. Thaden has her eye on even brighter laurels—the honor of spanning the Pacific. It is her intention, sometime before the year is out, to attempt a flight from Seattle to Tokio, taking Emory Bronte along as her navigator.

First Picture of Pope Pius Leaving The Vatican

This radio photo is the first picture to reach America showing Pope Pius XI leaving the Vatican—the first pope in 59 years to do so. The picture was taken as the procession, resplendent with all the traditional color and ceremony of the church, proceeded through vast crowds before famed St. Peter's. The canopied chair in which the pope rode is shown in the center, borne on the shoulders of the Vatican guards. This photograph was taken from Rome to London by airplane, sent across the Atlantic to New York by radio, and transmitted thence by telephone.

14 Textile Strikers to Be Tried for Murder

One of the most bitterly contested cases in North Carolina's legal history will come up for settlement shortly when 14 textile strikers are put on trial at Gastonia for the murder of Police Chief O. F. Alderholt, killed June 7 in a riot between police and Communist strikers. Photo No. 1 shows the strikers' headquarters, guarded by armed strikers, where the riot took place. No. 2 is one of the defendants, Lewis McLaughlin. No. 3 is the slain police chief, Alderholt. No. 4 is a national guard machine gun detachment, on duty at Gastonia to prevent further trouble. No. 5 is former Congressman Clyde R. Hoey, who will assist the prosecution, and No. 6 is Attorney Tom Jimison, former preacher, one of the defense lawyers.

MOSES TAKES METCALF POST

NEW HAMPSHIRE SENATOR TO HEAD G. O. P. COMMITTEE

Washington, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Senator Moses of New Hampshire was designated today as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, succeeding Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island, who himself will be a candidate for re-election in the next congressional campaign.

The campaign committee assists Senators in the respective contests for election.

McHugh Named

"2. Bond is required in the sum of $5,000 conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties.

"3. In addition to the requirement for keeping accounts, checking and making reports on various and sundry matters, the provision is made that all claims, bills and accounts against the County must be filed in ample time for the Auditor to examine them and approve same before the meetings of the Commissioners Court.

"4. No claim, bill or account shall be allowed or paid until it has been examined and approved by the County Auditor.

"5. He shall not audit or approve any such claims, unless it has been contracted as provided by law, nor any account for the purchase of supplies or materials for the use of said County.

Wichitan Suffered Since Child Makes Statement

"Orgatone Is the First Medicine I Have Found To Give Me Relief, I Am Proud To Tell About It," He Says.

"Yes, ever since I was ten years old I have suffered from stomach trouble. Anything I ate soured on my stomach, and I would suffer from acute indigestion," said H. P. Clements, living on rural route 6, Wichita Falls, Texas, while talking with the Orgatone representative.

"I got to where every time I would bend over, my head would swim and I'd turn blind from biliousness, and would have to hold to something to keep from falling. I had severe headaches, and was very nervous. Gas formed on my stomach, and would cause misery for me, for hours, after every meal. I had attacks of indigestion, so bad, I would cramp and suffer something terrible. Twice, I had to be carried off my job, for I wasn't able to walk. I was restless and at times, wouldn't get but two or three hours of sleep. I guess, I had taken about enough of soda, to load a freight car, and every kind of medicine I heard of.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Orgatone. I got a bottle and right from the very first few doses, noticed a great change in my condition. Since taking two bottles, I am feeling just fine. I'm not bothered at all now, with those gas and bilious spells, and I eat anything I want, and it digests perfectly. My constipation has been relieved and those terrible headaches, are gone. I haven't had a real bad spell of indigestion, since the first dose of Orgatone. Orgatone is the first medicine I have ever found to give me relief, and I want others to know what it has done for me."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Vernon exclusively by the Vernon Drug Co., who are direct laboratory agents.

Oil Magnate Returns to U. S. With New Wife

It's a custom, of course. And it took Col. H. H. Rogers, retired oil magnate, returning from Europe, three hours to convince officials in New York that his wife was a resident of Paris and her baggage exempt from duty. The bride, formerly Mrs. Basil Miles, and groom are shown above, left and center, as they argued with an inspector at the pier with several thousand dollars in duty at stake.

County or any of its officers, unless, in addition to the other requirements of law, there is attached thereto a requisition signed by the officer ordering same and approved by the County Judge.

"6. Therefore, it appears that the first consideration required of County Auditors, before their approval, is that of determining the legality of all claims presented for payment to or by the Commissioners Court.

Edison Protege Does Not Expect To Equal Master

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Selected from among the youth of the nation as the protege of Thomas A. Edison, 16-year-old Wilbur B. Huston has no illusions he ever will be as great as the famous inventor.

Displaying great modesty after announcement of his winning the Edison scholarship, he said:

"I wish to correct the erroneous impression that anyone can be selected as successor to Thomas A. Edison. I am not foolish enough to think I ever can be as great as he is."

The son of Bishop S. Arthur Huston of the Episcopal Diocese of Olympia, Wash., made a mark of 92 in the searching Edison questionnaire, to which the 49 competing youths were subjected. He was the last to finish.

He retained his modest and amiable bearing in the face of a barrage of questions from newspapermen.

He has never been a Boy Scout, or a member of the Y. M. C. A., he told them, his hobby is collecting specimens of marine biology. He was on the fencing team of Lakeside school at Seattle. He has never smoked. His favorite reading is biography.

He was revealed by the questionnaire as one who would sacrifice comfort for success, but not honor, health, happiness, love, riches nor reputation.

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 2 to 10 points on some covering and a little trade or commission house buying accompanied by talk of continued high temperatures in the southwest. These appeared to be offset by the outlook for cloudy weather with possible showers, however, and the market eased off during the early trading under further weekend or pre-bureau liquidation. October declined from 18.92 to 18.82 while March sold off from 19.32 to 19.21, with the market showing net losses of about 2 to 5 points at the end of the first half hour.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 33,000 bales against 40,000 last year.

Today was a holiday in the Liverpool market which will also be closed on Monday.
